I

A crowd.

A mass of mind and flesh,
when looked at as a whole, takes on the form of unabtrusive sameness.

Yet, broken down, slowly, persistantly,
we begin to take notice of faces.

Faces of individuals.

Each of us as individuals has our own thoughts and ideas with which to mold
the world and himself.

This process of thinking for ourself has many alternatives. How easy to leave the decision with the crowd and slip from under the responsibility.

But, it is only when we dissolve the crowd that we notice the individual with his thoughts, goals, ideas, and ambitions.

It is I, the individual, that must not be swallowed by the comfort of the group.

Only when we accept individual responsibility are we unique.

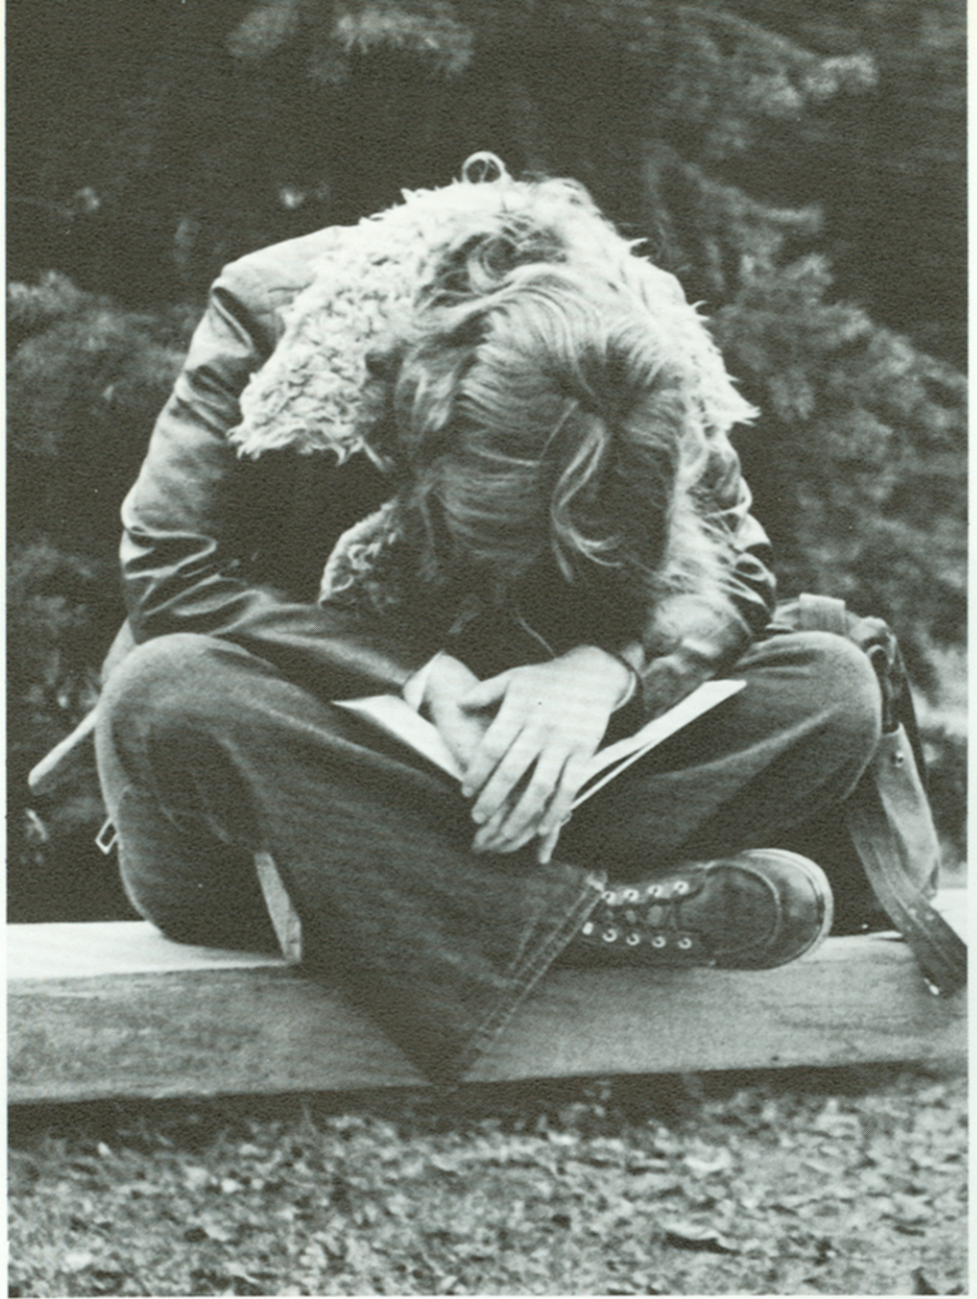

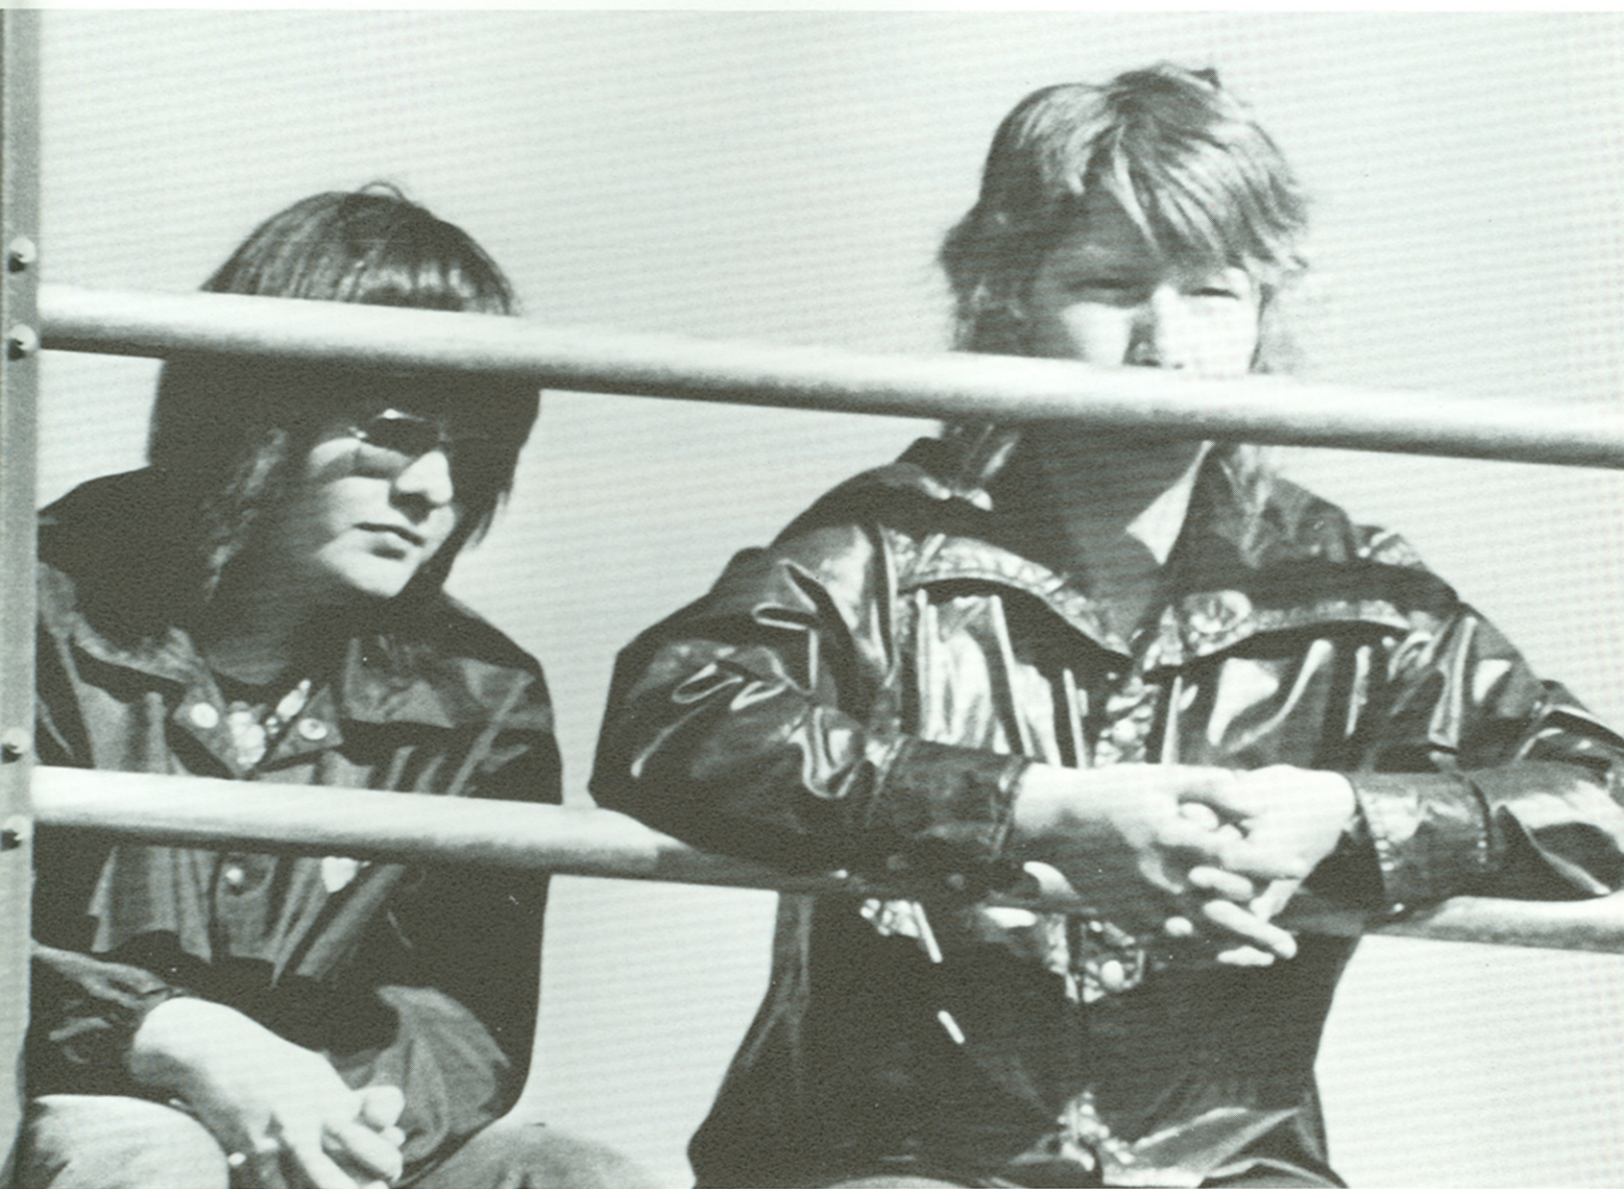

Do we create our surroundings, or does our environment create us?

Past.

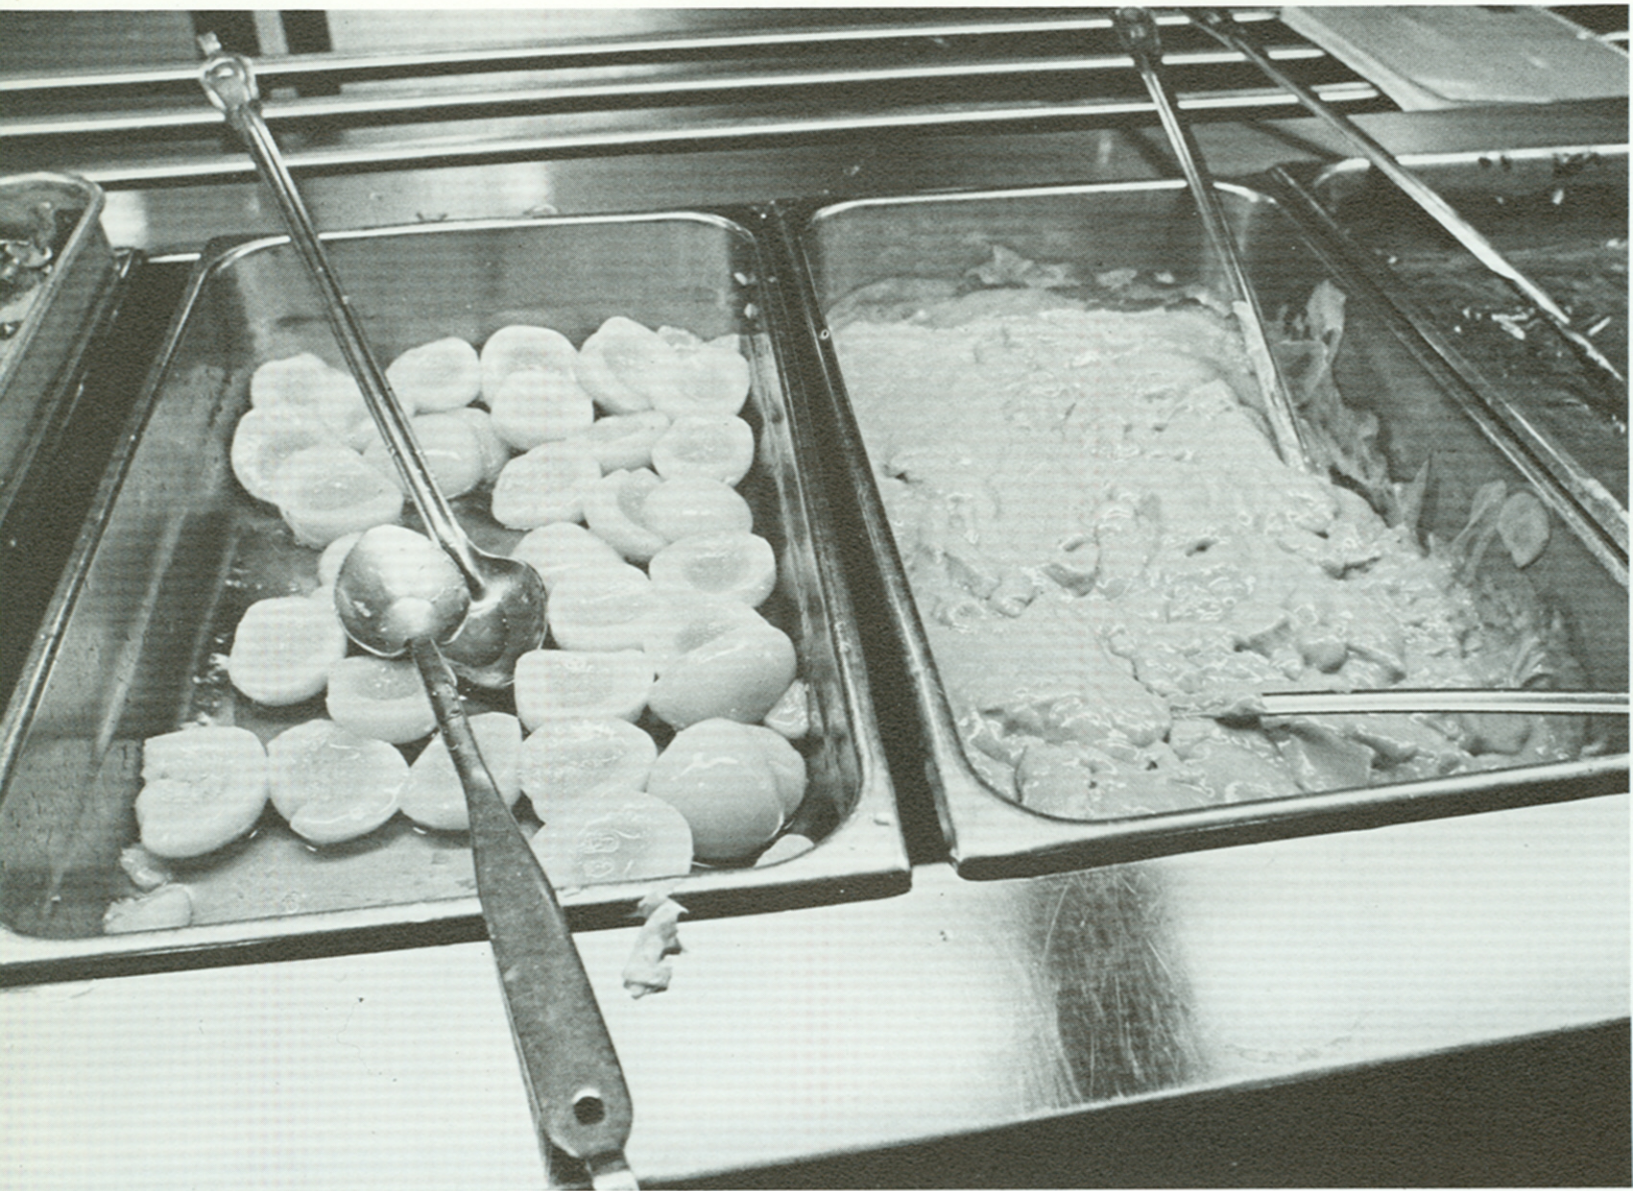

Present.

Future.

How we allow these tenses to rule our lives determines much of what we are.

We all take time to eat.
It's what we eat, when, and where that makes food more than just a necessity.

How some of us can exist on coffee and others require a four course meal only emphasizes our different wants.
We need the food to live but the mood, the occasion, and the company are sometimes more important than being hungry.

Do we mold our shelter or does it mold us?

A mattress in a corner or a king sized waterbed, each of us determines what our shelter will be.

A shelter may be a temporary roof or a cubicle for the protection of possessions.

A shelter may also be a safe retreat from oppressing forces.

What we wear expresses what we are,
want to be, or what we want others
to think we are.

How easily we change our moods by changing our clothes.

How often impressions are taken from fabric rather than features. We forget that clothes are mass produced but, each person was created as a unique individual.

No boundaries
No limits
Only countless opportunities.

The bird

g

s confident in himself and the wind that supports him.

If we have the faith in ourselves that the birds have, we too can fly!

It is assumed we have faith in other people,
but people hurt, so . . . .

We subsidize our faith
with the reassurances
of machines, education,
books, and nature.

Faith in something intangible requires courage.
A courage to admit that "I am not invincible, but need help."

"I love it!"

"I love you."

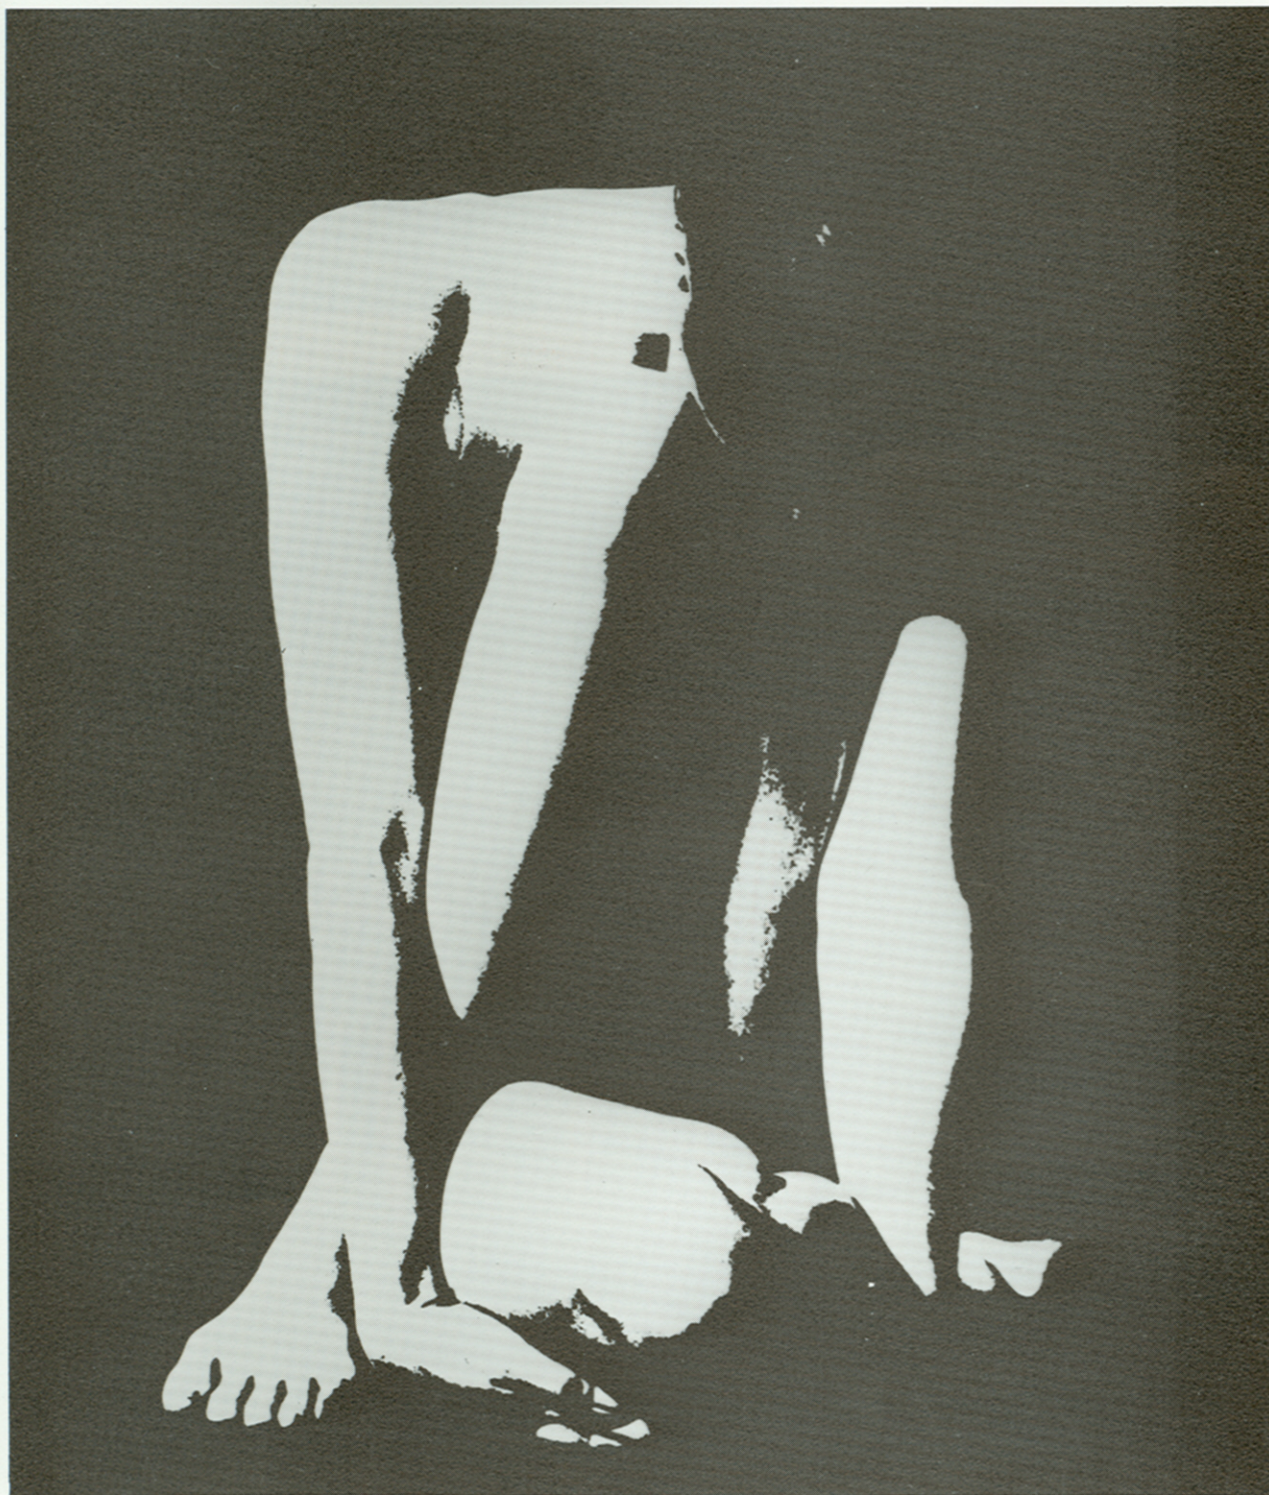

Fragile, yet strong,
Subtle, yet intense,
Changing, yet constant.

Relationships can't be simplified into a collection of words or phrases because our experiences create our own individual definitions.

Life is decisions;
Countless decisions;
Decisions we make and accept or decisions made by others that we submit to because . .
not to decide is to decide.

We meet each day with memorized instinctive behavior. It's easy to follow a routine, but machines can be programmed;
is that what we want?
It takes a direction, a goal, to give meaning to our lives.

We all are creative,
but the barriers of
inhibition, apathy,
and laziness often
prevent its expression
in all but a few.

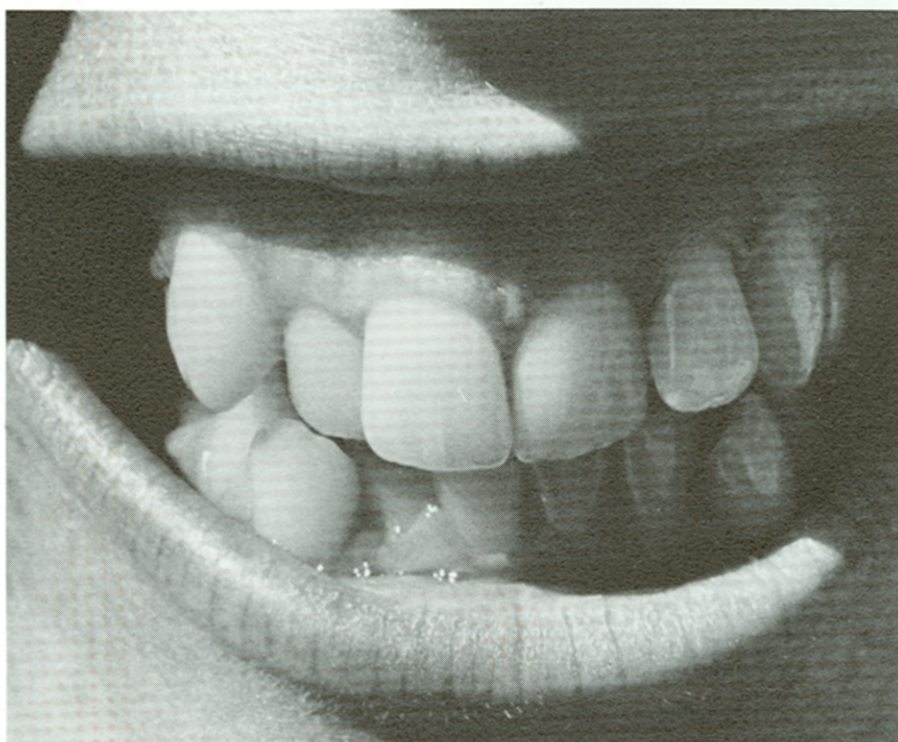

As we live we create a pattern of expressions. Some, afraid of being different, let fear conform their pattern; others have the courage to be original.

Searching for ourselves we acquire a collection of things. Things we weave into a design. A design that when completed reveals a replica of our life.

I look, I see, I feel,
and you do the same.
But are we experiencing
the same feelings?

We may never know.

Reflection of the past is a constant process. Looking back, reminiscing, or only silently pondering; our faces are clock faces which tell more than the hour. They reveal a life time to those who take the opportunity to look.

"You're late"

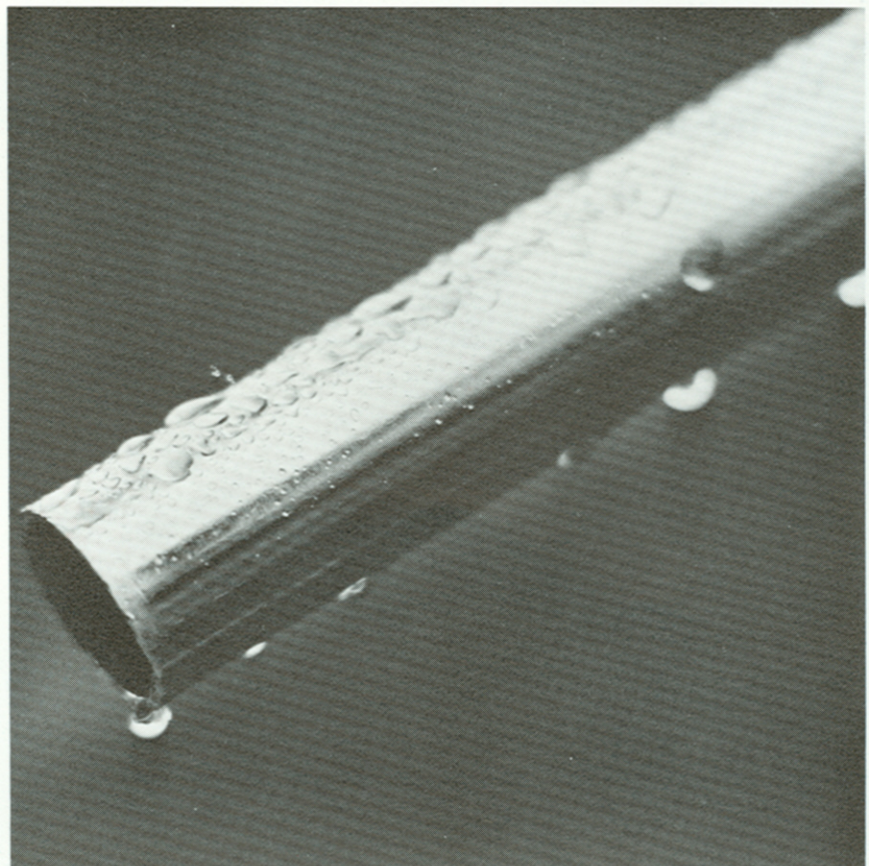

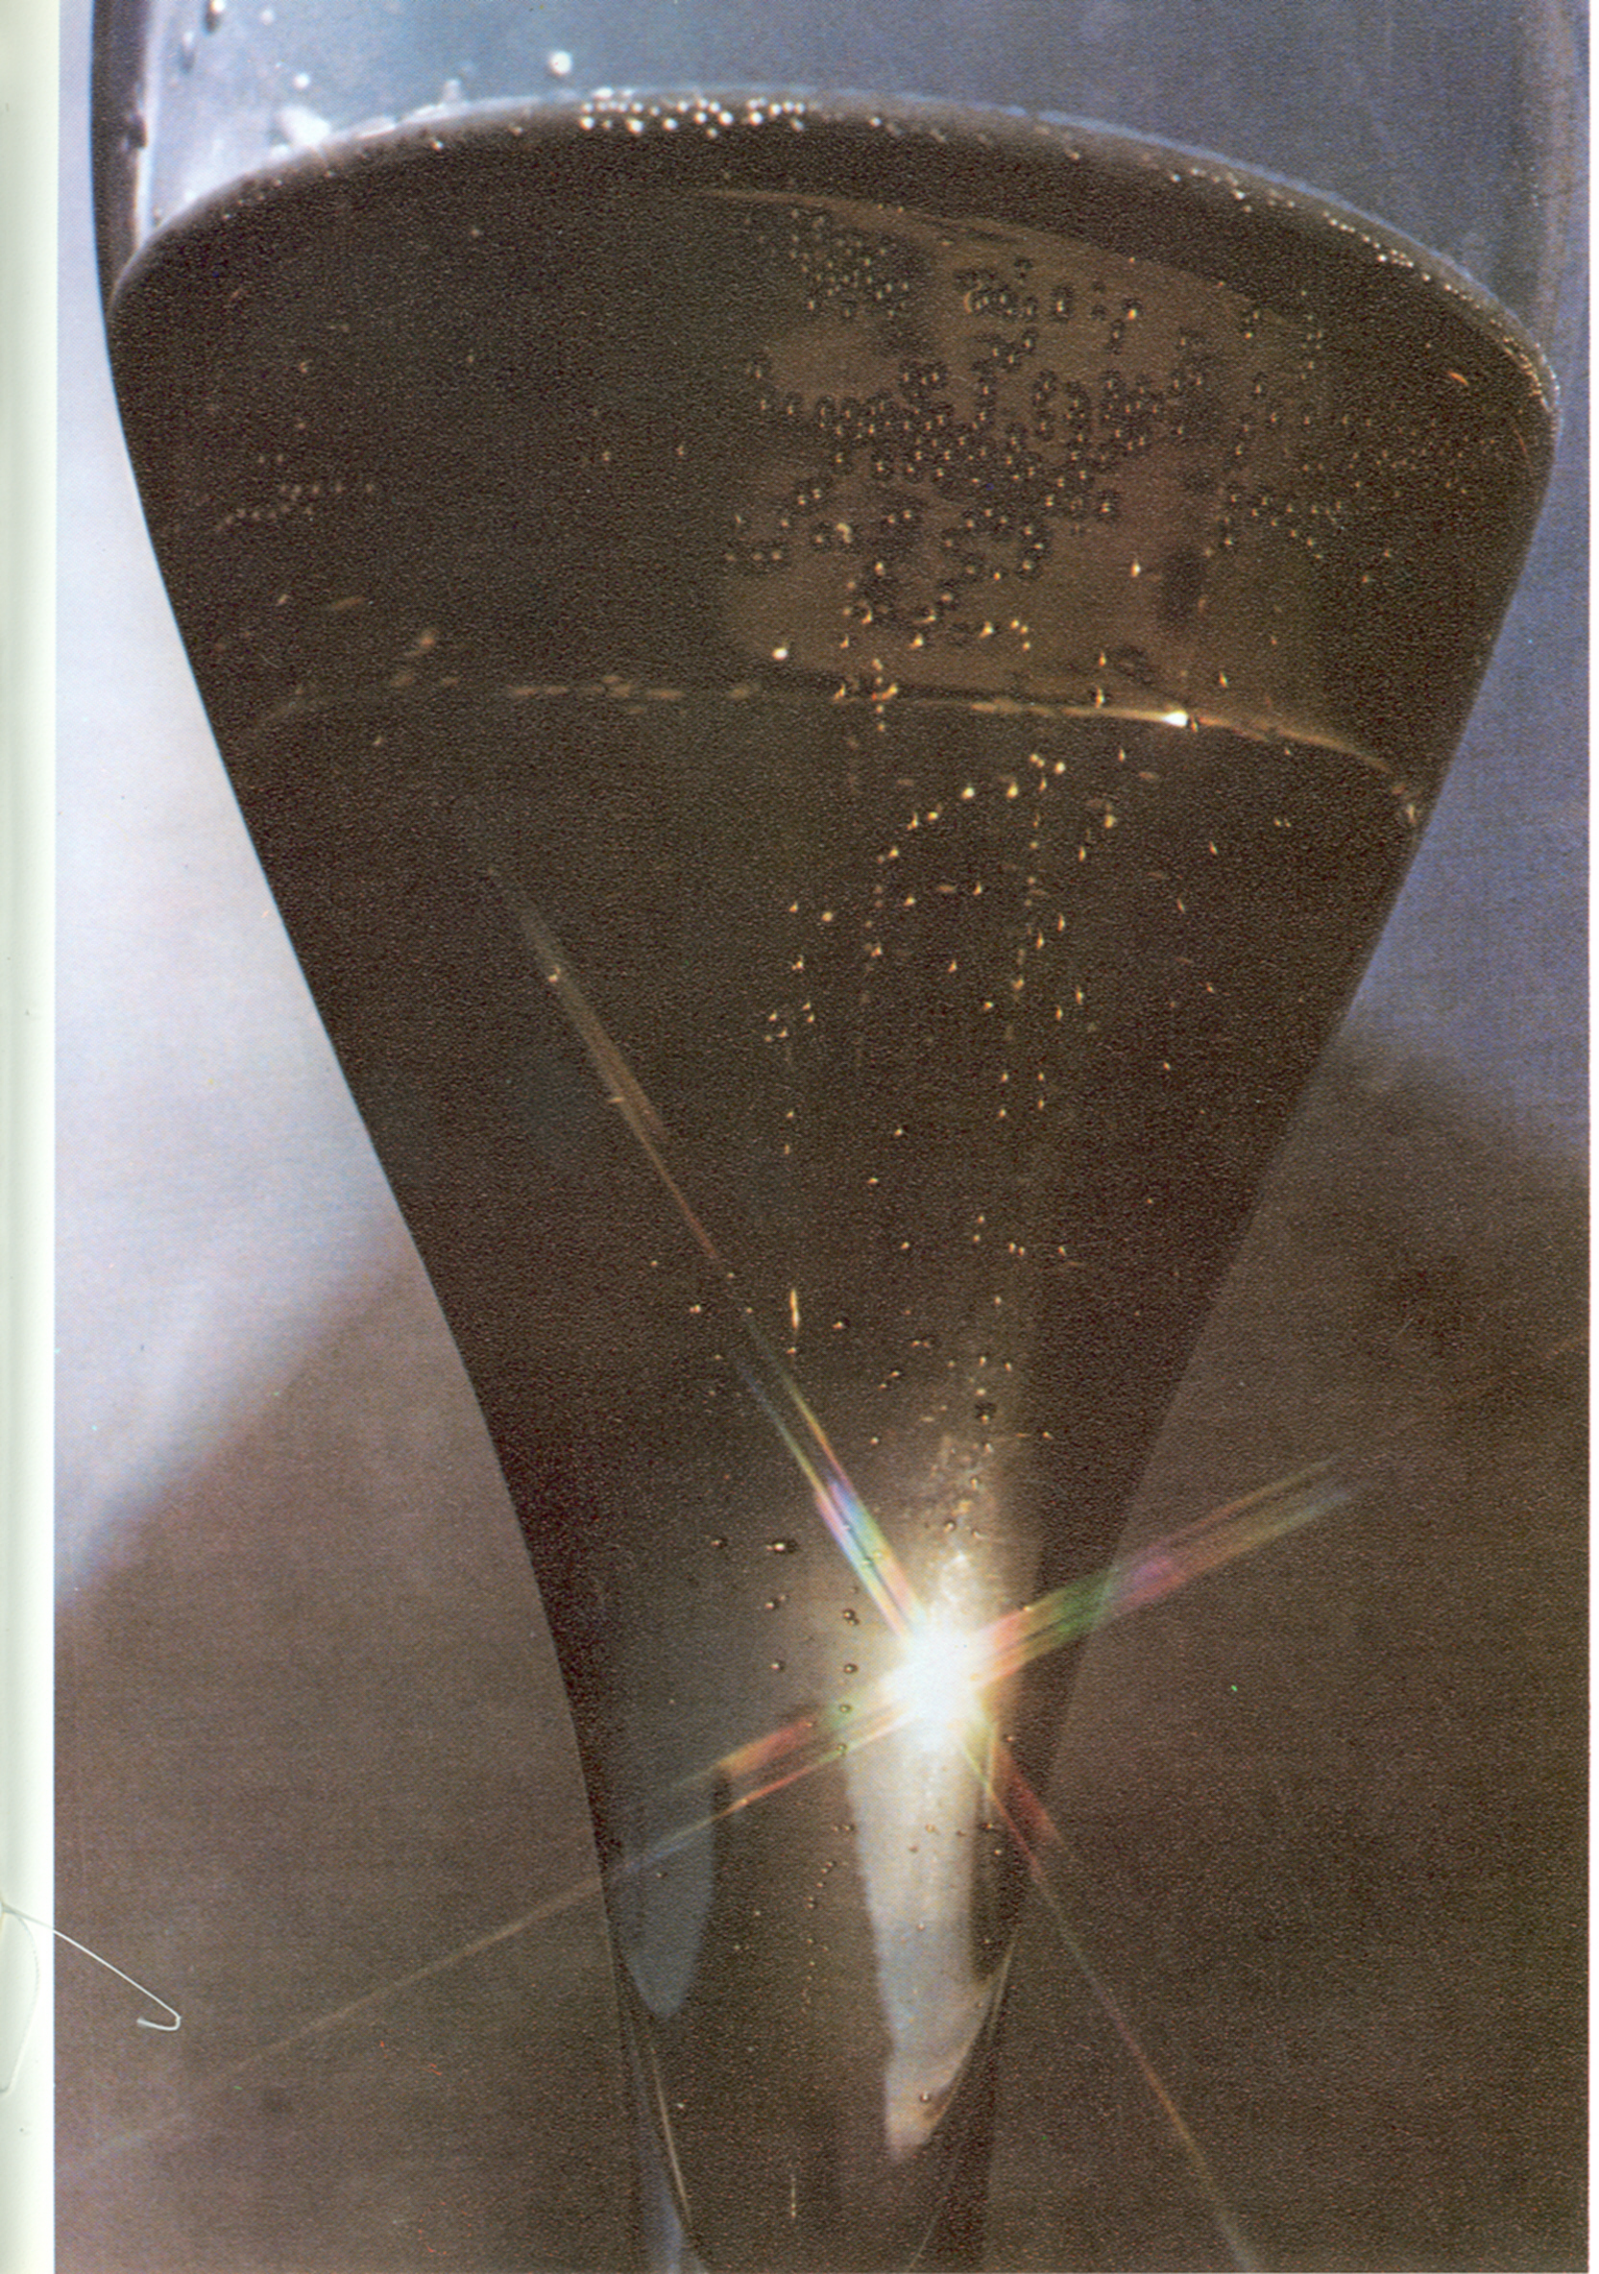

Tumbling and bubbling,
languid and placid,
life like a liquid flows on conforming to its surroundings then, breaking through all barriers forms its own pathway.

Sometimes it may be almost gone with only a few quivering trembling drops.

Only when it has become stagnant is water and life completely useless.

WE

Registration found students waiting in seemingly endless lines as they prepared for another semester. For many, the experiences proved frustrating as schedules were reshuffled for the third and fourth time. Voices grew sharp and tempers shortened as classes continued to close and the number of overloads lessened. It seemed there weren't enough hours in a day, or even days in a week . . . . Somehow, somewhere, there must be a better way . . .

Students Scrambled and Were Scrambled by Registration

Students Said Goodbye to Summer

All too soon, the summer was gone the students wrestled boxes, suitcases, and heaps of personal possessions as they moved into dorms and apartments. Only memories remained of summer sun, jobs, and school. The present was an evident reality as overstuffed cars were unloaded, boxes unpacked, and another year began.

The Few Warm Days Were Filled

During the few warm fall days that we had students made the best of their weekends. Sailboats, canoes, and water skiers, dotted Lake Menomin. The first weeks of school included Harvest Fest and Tainter Lake Festival. These events provided music, games, food, beer, and a lot of the outdoors.

New Chancellor Emphasized Uniqueness

Robert S. Swanson, a former Stout student, instructor, and dean, became Chancellor of the university in September, 1972. His appointment replaced William J. Micheels.

In the course of his administration, he has found his associations with Stout students enjoyable. "The Stout student is a practical individual; quite career-oriented and concerned with practical situations and ways of doing things. He is friendly, easy to talk with, and very open and concise about his feelings."

To best suit the needs and desires of its students, Swanson chose to maintain Stout's status as a "career-oriented institution with a smaller number of large, well known programs. Rather than developing totally new areas of study, we should expand and develop more fully the areas we now have." His goals for the coming year therefore include expansion of graduate programs, variations and additions to present majors, and the general development of a learning atmosphere.

Speculating on the future, the Chancellor has said: "Let's not lose our uniqueness. In maintaining the flavor of a small school with a number of highly qualified programs in specific areas, we can serve a special purpose in a way that others have not chosen."

Bloodmobile Offered Opportunity for Service

Why did students wait in line to be questioned? They scrambled up onto tables to be prodded, and depleted of their own body substance.

The Red Cross Bloodmobile, sponsored by the Alpha Phi Omega and Gamma Sigma Sigma Service Organizations, drew three to four hundred donors from the university and community.

Why? Munching cookies and sipping fruit juice with their one good arm, students unwound knowing they had done at least one good thing for the day.

Cage Brought Prison Life to the "Outside"

A stirring presentation by the Barbed Wire Theatre Group on September 22 gave Stout a new and shocking insight into today's correctional institutions.

Through drama and mock trial, homosexuality, injustice, and poor living conditions were presented by those who have learned from hard experience—former convicts.

A question and answer period with discussion followed the presentation.

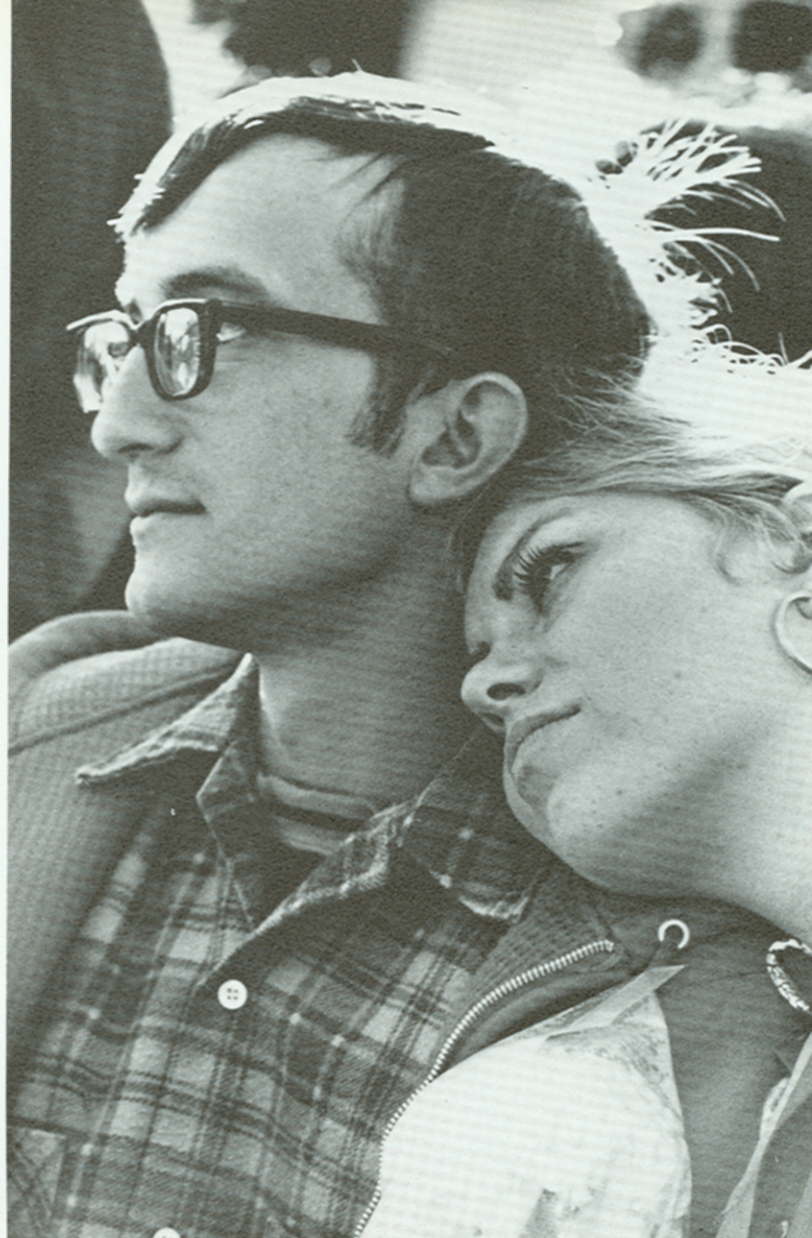

TOP LEFT: Convicts bring their experiences and feelings outside the prison confines. LEFT: An intense drama portraying the prison experience. ABOVE: Classroom interaction precedes the performance.

Parades, Games, and Contests Reflected Homecoming Tradition

Homecoming '72 was an attempt to add a new and different approach to a traditional event. In addition to the familiar queen's contest, football game, and individual contest, there were a variety of new activities.

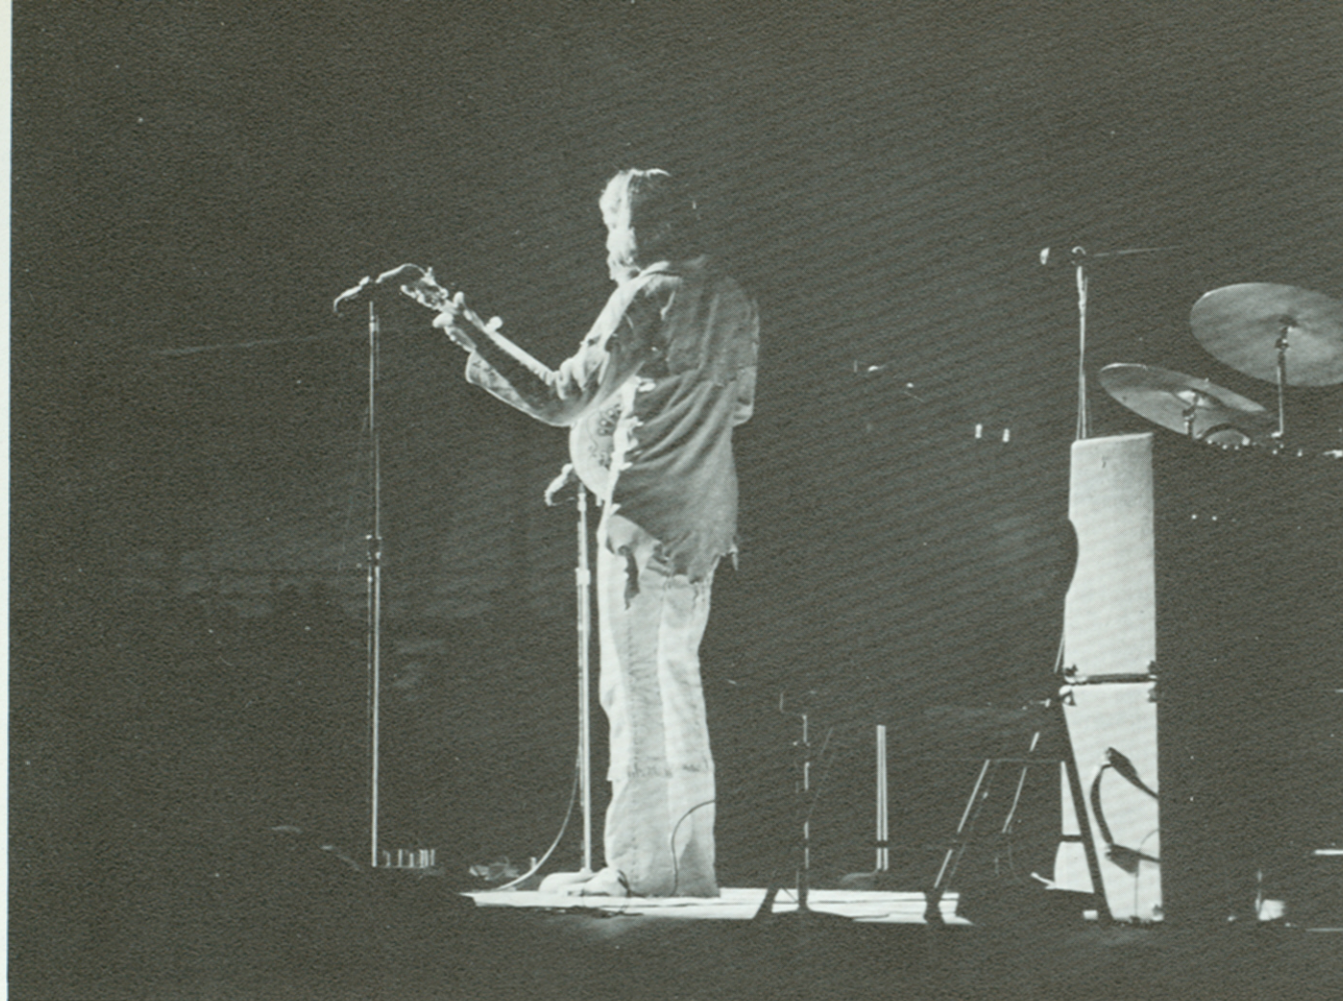

The week began with banners and flyers promoting the queens, coupled with haywagons, chicken wire, and sky high piles of napkins which might someday become floats.

In the spirit of the week, students packed themselves into volkwagons, ate dozens of hard-boiled eggs, and swallowed nearly whole pies in the various events.

Evening Concert Added New Highlight

In accordance with this year's theme "Something New, Something Different," the homecoming dance was replaced by a Saturday concert by the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band. Performing at the fieldhouse, the band featured a program of bluegrass music, a fiddler, and a touch of the fifties.

Not to be forgotten among the many new activities were the friends, old and new, who got together to celebrate the occasion and to remember old times.

Bluedevils Received Deserved Victory

A crisp fall afternoon heightened the excitement of a first victory and made the '72 Homecoming game a memorable one. After a disappointing four game losing streak with no scoring the Stout Bluedevils made a striking comeback with a 24-15 Homecoming victory over Stevens Point.

A number of Bluedevil players displayed competence during the course of the game. Sophomores Jeff Statszyk and Tom Glinski and freshman Bob Haberli scored their first touchdowns, while Rick Henneberry and Roger Berg were outstanding on defense.

After a string of chilling nights at the fairground, the floats took shape, the votes were in, and Trudy Nodgaard, sponsored by the Alpha Phi sorority, was crowned 1972 Homecoming Queen by Chancellor Robert Swanson.

Union Brought the Stout Community Together

FAR LEFT: The Pawn, located downstairs in the Student Union, provides a quieter, more private location during the school day. CENTER: Students hurry to and from campus as the rain slickens the sidewalks on the mall. LOWER LEFT: A spirit of friendliness and unity seem to prevail. ABOVE: An engrossing game of chess proves relaxing. LEFT: The antics of a folk singer add to the lively atmospher in the snack bar.

Although a student's "leisure time" was often limited, the union was the one retreat from academic pressures. The union was frequently crowded with students playing pool, cards, or just taking a break between classes. It was there that student government met, that political issues were discussed over coffee, and organizations held their meetings. The union was a meeting place, whether a meeting of hundreds of people or of only two, it provided a place for communication; communication through conversation, gestures, music, art, and printed word.

All Interests Were Covered by Pawn

The Pawn, a familiar place of relaxation for Stout students, attempted a more varied program of events for the year. In addition to the familiar folk music, the Pawn committee added talent in the areas of country ballads, blue grass, classical and blues.

Sponsoring its annual Fall Showcase to discover talented students in the University community, the Pawn's winner was Theresa Jackson.

To find a seat was often a problem but students didn't mind sitting on the floor or standing through a set. When Jerry Grossman made one of his waited for appearances, the Pawn met capacity crowds by moving to the snackbar.

Play Presented Man's Need to be Free

When a spirited young actress who wanted to be as free as the butterflies, a blind boy who wanted to achieve manhood and individuality by becoming a professional folk singer, and an over-protective mother all came together in the same New York apartment, accidentally, only calamity and hilarity could result.

The University Theatre's Fall season opened October 12 with Leonard Gershe's "Butterflies Are Free." Under the direction of Terry Markovich, the comedy production provided a lot of lines and antics for laughter. Ed Foy, Mira Smith, Maggie Garey, and Ray McCoy made up the cast.

Special Presentations Served Various Interests

The ballroom was a center of displays, presentations, and seminars. Two of the largest were Dimensions '73 and Alfresco's Ski Show. The Dimensions program, sponsored by the Apparel, Textiles, and Design department featured speakers, style shows and textile crafts displays. The Ski Show was a two day display of ski facilities, equipment and fashion. Ski experts were also available for advice.

BELOW: Speakers present issues to questioning voters. TOP CENTER: Opinions are strong and varied often dividing households. BOTTOM: Months of campaign bombardment lead to the moment of decision. TOP RIGHT: Polls are set up at various locations and manned by interested citizens. BOTTOM CENTER: Voters represent all ages and walks of life. BOTTOM RIGHT: Exercising new rights, students take time out to vote.

New Voting Rights Were Exercised

"Nixon or McGovern", "to floridate or not to floridate," the war, the dollar, and poverty had been the topic of conversations, editorials, and news broadcasts for months and now the day had come to make a choice. The 1972 elections drew a significant number of Stout students as they could now vote in the local polling places. All those who voted knew that important issues were under consideration.

Issues For Critical Thought Were Presented

Angela Davis, renowned crusader for suppressed peoples spoke to a curious, almost restless audience at Johnson Fieldhouse on November 14.

Miss Davis began her speech with an evaluation of Nixon and his past failures and accomplishments. She continued with her views on capitalism in American society.

Her words and ideas were not new to many; a number of students commented that they "Had heard it all before . . ." Almost more emphatic were those who had anticipated a more startling, explosive presentation. Some left disappointed, others enlightened; the reactions were varied. Yet all seemed to agree that they had been forced to think.

Students Contributed to the Community

The university doesn't just take a student and pour so much knowledge down his throat. Stout students took this knowledge and applied much of it to their lives. They were active within the community. Working individually or as a group, students from Stout cleaned yards, visited hospitals, were big brothers to children, and passed on some of the skills they had learned.

Through community involvement students gained experience of a type not offered within a classroom.

LOW: Students help train new drivers.

Responsibility Taken on by Student Governments

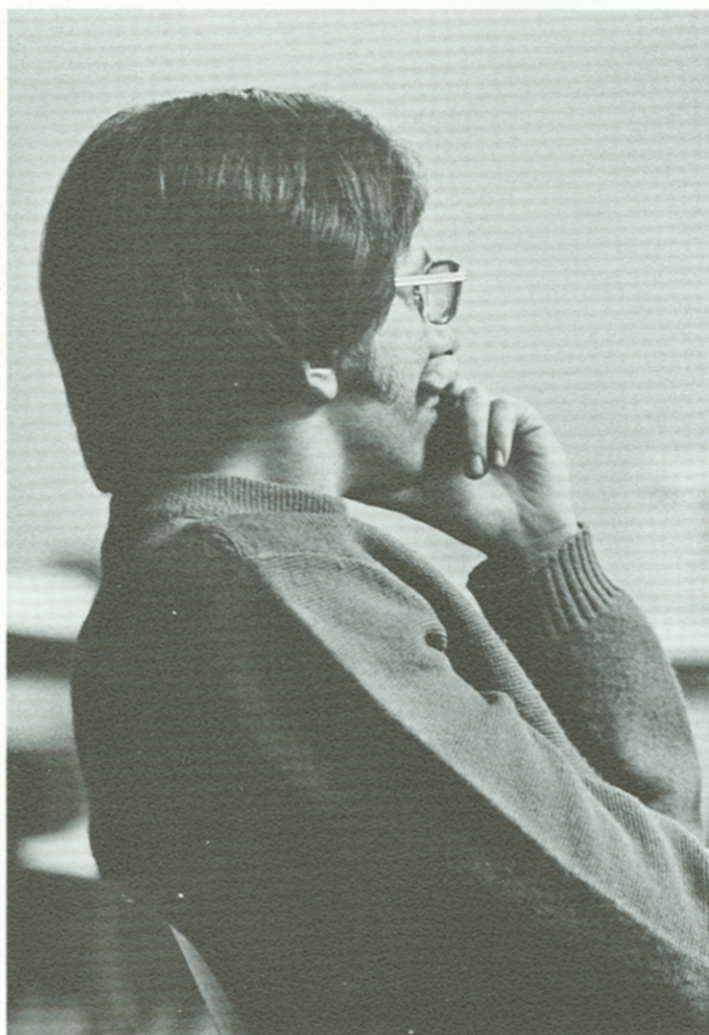

Student governments were frustrating and fascinating functioning bodies.

Accusations of apathy were directed at the university community. The apathetic majority shrugged their shoulders and continued their lives. Some students caught the slow disease of curiosity that drew them into questioning how our student politics really works. These inquisitive members gradually became participants or they went back to allowing someone else to make the decisions.

Student Senate wobbled on its feet some times but always pulled through. University Activities Assembly discussed many changes in an attempt to improve the interrelations and functioning of the different university organizations and services.

Inter-Residence Hall Council drew itself together into a strong organization that sponsored activities and entertainment for the entire campus.

Students formulated proposals, questioned ideas, and made decisions. Students represented their fellow floor members, their organizations, and student community. Yes, tempers flared, opinions clashed, name calling occurred, and mistakes were made, but these groups could never be called apathetic.

Snowfall Couldn't Be Ignored

Nothing was more beautiful or peaceful than a new snowfall. Sometimes it seemed as if each snowflake was a sedative that slowly and rhythmically took away the worries of the day.

How strange that the snow could also make your whole body ache as you struggled to make it to class without falling or being completely frozen.

The snow fell, covering everything, and made us aware of how susceptible we were to weather, then it would retreat. We'd dig ourselves out and then, surprise, six inches of white crystals immobilized everything except for the conscientious student who trudged up to class to find out his teacher was snowed in.

LEFT: Boots and mittens come out of closets for the first heavy snowfall. BELOW: The snow isolates us with its total cover. RIGHT: The fragile artistry of mother nature.

Free Flicks

Completed Weekend

Every Sunday night there was a mass migration to Harvey Hall to catch the free movie for the week. "Cactus Flower", "My Fair Lady", and "Andromeda Strain" were only a few of the recent flicks shown. Funded through activity fees, the Free Flicks could always be assured of a good crowd.

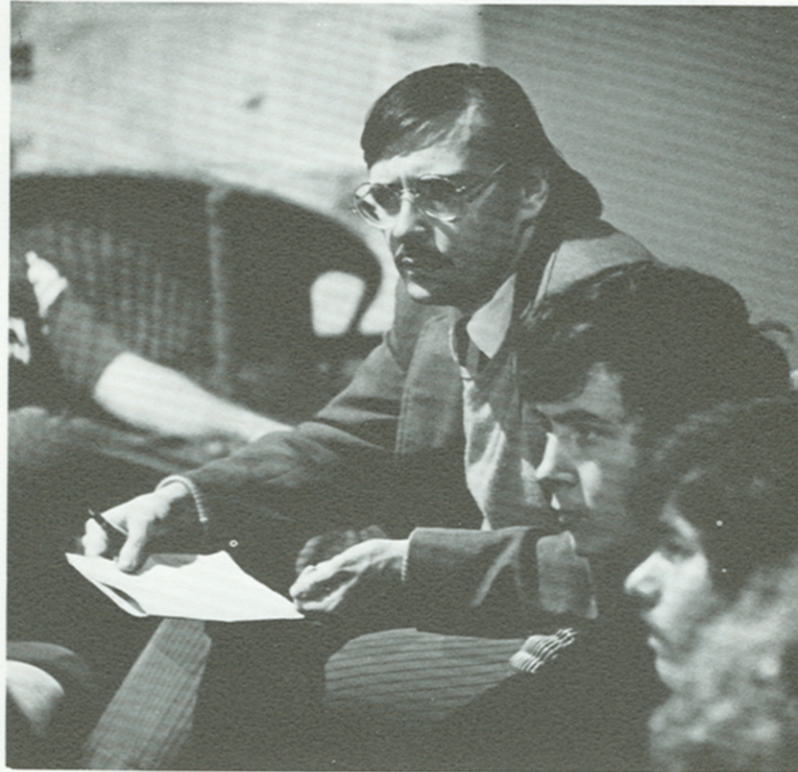

Free Flicks was an inexpensive night out. It was also an excellent way to unwind from weekend studying and prepare for that ominous Monday morning. The only requirement to attend Free Flicks was the infamous I.D. card and the stamina to wait in line.

One Acts Present Social Topics

The "Future is in Eggs" and "The Leader" kept the audience glued to their chairs in expectation and fear. "Eggs" discussed the society induced pressures of producing goods. "Produce, produce" echoed through the Quarter Square Theatre. "The Leader" exhibited how easily man is brainwashed, prodded into action, and thoroughly confused. They both demonstrated that 'life is often night-marishly mad.

Presented December 1 and 2 the plays were directed by Terry Markovich. Cast members included in "Leader" were Bill Bundy, Greg Dattilo, Rita Michelin, Tony Whelihan, Linda State, and Bill Sanberg. In "Eggs" were Dave Bailey, Larry Laird, Vicki Gullikson, Mira Smith, Elaine McMunn, Jim Radatz, Ethan Hardacker and Linda Craney.

What does a Stout student, or for that matter, any student, do with most of his academic years? He stands in lines. The reason for this problem was never stated, but 1972-73 was a year of waiting with one's fellow students. There was the line for the add-drop when one waited two hours only to find out that you had to have the teacher's signature on two cards. The annual endless lines for Eau Claire basketball games tickets appeared in the basement of the union. Every Sunday night there was the line that wrapped around Harvey Hall for a free flick. Lines for books were an accepted fact of life. The most frequently participated in line was a food line. Whether in the food service, the grocery store, the Pawn, or the snack bar, everyone waited to eat. And so the Stout student stood, shuffled, grumbled, pushed, and sighed his way through another year of lines.

Student Media

Enhanced Communication

Communication to the university community was provided by printed and spoken word. WVSS broadcast news, music, and daily campus happenings. The Stoutonia printed the weekly bitching and backpatting of different individuals and organizations. It brought new insight to Stout's students concerning community, campus, and national new events.

The year's events were eventually compiled into the TOWER. Little samples of campus living, cultural presentations, sports and soon forgotten faces were juggled together into a brief account of one year of Stout.

All student directed media was also student organized, directed, and sweated over by students.

So few students worked so hard to inform so many.

Intramural Athletics:

Competition, Unity, Enthusiasm

A cold soggy fall didn't hinder baseball or football. During the winter months the fieldhouse was alive with teams practicing or putting their practice to work to win the playoffs. Men and women enjoyed participation in every season, indoors or out. It was a chance to do not just watch.

Where Else But Downtown?

Where did almost every Stout student eventually go to relax, to seek friends, or just to be absorbed by the crowd? Downtown.

The bars offered afternoon double bubbles, foosball tournaments and all-campus parties.

If you could navigate through the tight crowds without stumbling, slipping on peanut shells, or being thoroughly doused with beer it could be called a successful evening.

There was something downtown to suit everyone or to satisfy a particular mood, loud music, live music, no music, large crowds, small groups, or individuals.

Going downtown also satisfied hunger pangs as pizza, cheeseburgers, and subways were readily available.

Students Ingested Ideas

Although it often seemed to cramp one's style, studying was a major part of every student's day. Study habits varied to as many degrees as there were students.

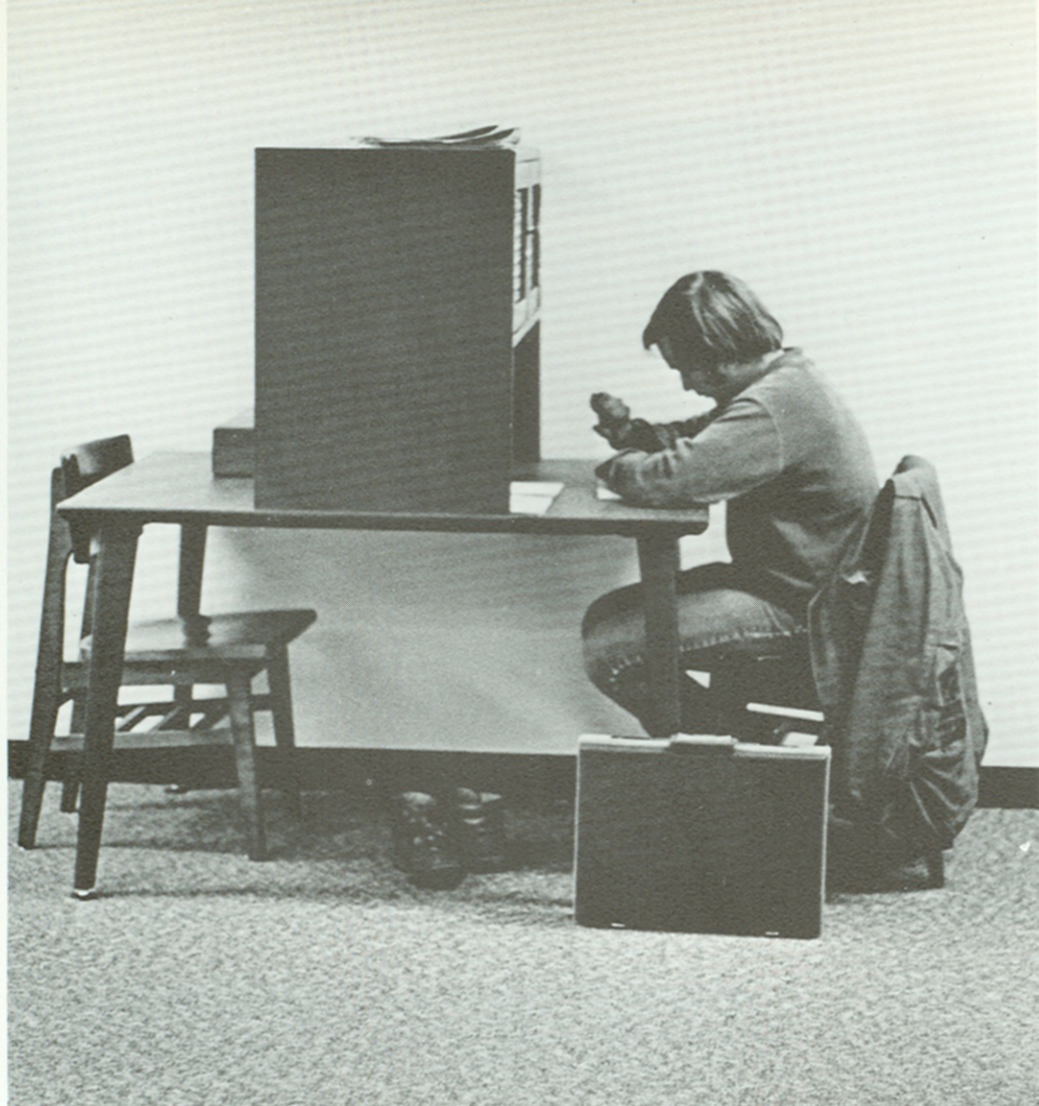

Who can say if quiet and solitude is better than group discussion and review. The only statements that can be made are that each student attempted to learn something. Maybe it had nothing to do with the class. Perhaps it was the day you picked up a stray book in the stacks and couldn't put it down.

The library added more casual and comfortable furniture for those who lounged and dozed while they read.

Christmas Spirit Finalized Semester

The Christmas season, coupled with the end of the semester, instilled a feeling of anticipation and excitement. There was the hectic confusion of completing last minute reports and exams while trying to decide what to get everyone for Christmas; if you could get a plane home in time for the holidays; and what could possibly have gobbled up the fifty dollars you had hid away for gifts.

The pre-Christmas season in Menomonie held all the traditional decorations, amplified carols, and Christmas concerts. Dormitory decorations, parties, and snow made the end of the semester drudgery a little easier to take.

Degrees, Diplomas, Decisions— a December Graduation

The field house was cooler, the bleachers not quite so full, and the Christmas season cast a big shadow over the ceremony, but winter graduation was still filled with pomp and pageantry. Graduation was a big event in the students' career, and the season did very little to cool the feelings of success.

Maxi Learning in a Mini Session

The calender left a month between first and second semester that could be filled with one or two credit courses in Mini session. It was a chance to boost that credit total, or pick up a course for no other reason except that it sounded like fun. They usually were.

LEFT: Chancellor Swanson officiates at his first graduation.
 ABOVE: The patterns have to be carefully planned. FAR RIGHT: Lots of new equipment made textiles an adventure.
 ABOVE CENTER: Patience, practice, and imagination are the only prerequisites to weaving.

Winter Touched All

No one was immune to the changing of the seasons. Winter came early to frost windows, slick sidewalks, and stall cars. Snow lovers relished the idea of a few extra weeks of skiing and snowmobiling. Unfortunately early winter weather didn't bring an abundant snowfall.

The winter season did escort in an ample supply of colds, hockey games, and frozen feet. Students, have always adapted to situations and winter was no exception. What winter chills couldn't be blocked out by mittens and parkas were warded off by a well filled wine skin.

Applied Arts Received Attention

Opening some of its facilities in November the Applied Arts building was ready for full occupancy by the second semester. Another accomplishment in Stout's expanding institutional development, the building held art, music, and education classrooms and offices. It was filled with studios, labs, practice rooms, and rehearsal halls.

The Days Rambled By

Second semester began with chilly temperatures as activity was kindled by local fires. Sanna Dairy brought spectators out into zero temperatures and caused detour of traffic as firemen battled the blaze. One Saturday night in February fire rigs blocked Broadway as smoke wisped from the top floor of the Marion Hotel. Students clustered and huddled in packs as the bars neared closing, to drink beer, devour "subways" and wonder where all the onlookers would eventually party.

And so the semester started. There were a few bands in the union, nights downtown, and parties after 1:00 A.M. but wheels of action and participation seemed frozen at a standstill.

Winter Carnival

Traditions Crystallized

Mild temperatures and rain cancelled some of the winter festivities but didn't stifle the spirit. Lack of snow in the right places challenged the constructors of the ice carvings but students came through it as usual. Outdoor snow games were a little soggy at times but the indoor games drew large crowds of cheering and jerring onlookers who screamed and hooted for their favorite contestant.

The week was complimented by a variety of entertainment. Edmonds and Curley packed the snack bar with their humorous reflections on life. Mike Johnson also drew a standing room only crowd when he presented an evening of mellow music.

Patsy Scheibel bubbled and giggled with excitement as she received her crown as Winter Carnival Queen.

Thaw Brought Cancellations

Winter Carnival traditions refused to be eliminated by melting temperatures but some things were just beyond human control. Alfresco's ice races made waves until cut short by rising water. The spectators enjoyed an afternoon in the warm spring sun.

The weekend offered the Alpha Phi's sno-ball dance with glistening snowflakes, and a concert by "Gypsy" to finalize the 1973 Winter Carnival of Crystal Impressions.

Black Awareness organization presented "Black Culture" week, February 11-17, in hopes of providing the student body and community with information about black society.

Rap sessions concerning the roles of black men and women in society stimulated thinking. Talent shows and fashion shows offered entertainment. Completing the week was a dance which drew one of the biggest crowds of the year.

Winter Play is Love Fantasy—Liliom

Surrealistic sets, somber lighting and silhouettes were the elements of the production of Liliom on March 3, 4, and 5. Mr. Noel Falkofske was in charge of the creative technical effects and his wife Karin, was responsible for the acting direction.

Liliom, the basis for Carousel, was a love fantasy with a cast of David Bailey, Karen Arthur, Jeff Klauser, Ann Schantz, Mary Perry, Donald Bucholz, Ted Spencer, Dennis Tite, William Sandberg, Jerome Zelanka, Wilson Day, Mark Feldner, Robert Herling, Mark Schmit, Jane Deising, Stephan Kraus, Charles Ladwig, Susan Muck, Kris Holbus, Bill Labs, Steven Brantner, Jean Benaszkeski, Joyce Czajkowski, Susan Gardner, Sandra Govin, Joyce Angoli, Denise Behnke, Norma Jean Gagnon, Marilyn Griebenow, and Meg Solyst.

On March 8, 9, and 10, Stunt Nite did it again. For the twenty-sixth year, the annual Stunt Nite kept audiences laughing. Sponsored by the Phi Omega Beta fraternity the ten acts, interspersed with comedy skits, contained a variety of music, comedy, dance, and talents.

The Alpha Phi sorority placed first in the most beautiful category with the Kappa Lambda Beta fraternity taking the prize for most humorous and best individual talent. Other participating groups who helped to make the evening worthwhile were Alpha Omicron Pi, Alpha Sigma Alpha, Sigma Sigma Sigma, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Third Tainter, Chi Lambda, and the First Joynt Effort Jug Band.

Where Else Could You Go?

Talk, talk, talk, and if you were ambitious you could play pool, listen to music, or bowl. The whole idea was to get the university together for awhile. In the Center everyone was on an equal basis. Concerts, either in the Pawn or in the Snack Bar, helped to keep the Center alive. Special events like the screening of old T.V. shows, slide presentations, art displays, and seminars rounded out a very diverse center schedule.

Winter seems to last forever in Wisconsin, so when the sun finally broke through after weeks of cloudy skies, and the snow melted, no matter how cold it was people flocked outside. The mall came alive, the jug band entertained, the sun warmed, and people smiled who hadn't smiled for weeks. The whole scene seemed to change drastically from the gloom of the long winter quarter. But no matter how early spring comes, school seems to end all too soon.

Performing Arts Brought Excellence

Performing Arts brought a unique sampling of talented performers during the 1972-73 season. The season was marred by the fact that thousands of students, who ironically complain about nothing to do, did not attend. It was a tragedy, for the year containing "The Cage", St. Paul Chamber Orchestra, The Wisconsin Mime Company, Improvisational Theatre and the Jacques Loussiers Trio, all excellent entertainment.

Creative Arts

Exhibits, Fairs, Talent

Art students presented the products of their talents through exhibits. In the spring an art fair was held on the union lawn. The hot sunny weather, the inflatable dome, and tables laden with their wares attracted curious observers. It not only provided many people with the opportunity to purchase good art work, but also gave students an opportunity to clean out their collections and sell some of their excess. The new Applied Arts Building allowed more area for displaying the work of students, faculty, and traveling exhibits.

Audiences

The production of "Fiddler On the Roof" was a tribute to its director Terry Markovich. The show was certain to succeed when 150 people auditioned for 40 roles. The weeks of rehearsals molded 37 people into a remarkable performing unit. The simple story of a poor Russian milkman and his family delighted thousands who wept, laughed, and sang along with the cast. Every aspect, technical, artistic, and orchestral was proof of the pride and ability of all who took part. The cast included: Dave Bailey, Larry Laird, Lori Spears, Amy Daluge, Maggie Foote, Cynthia Woodwick, Karen Breunig, Linda Monk, Julie Dey, Peter Langlais, Steve McIntyre, Tom Petroliunas, Dave Shafel, John Anholt, Kim Montello, Joe Smith, Liz Eith, Marcia Nadeovki, John Hines, Alan Ridgeway, Dorothy Bernarde, Nancy Kruegar, Lynn Lucius, Sue Harte, Marilyn Timber, Sally Brussat, Renee DeMars, Debbie Annen, Mary Deguiseppi, Phyllis Jones, Betty Danielson, Duane Crawford, John Reush, Dan Wangerin, Dave Kluge, Tom Cobian, Bill Mitchell.

A Night at Delmonicos-1873

Stout has become nationally known for its annual fourteen course Haute Cuisine dinner. This year they received national news coverage on NBC. The dinner began with a champagne reception at 7:30 and the last of the guests did not leave until 3:30 the next morning. Only 104 reservations were accepted, and they were filled within 15 minutes with guests from all over the United States.

The Haute Cuisine class had spent months of research, recipe testing, and dress rehearsals before the dinner was presented. The ballroom for one evening was Delmonicos, complete with red draperies and tuxedoed waiters.

Students Demand Action

On April tenth many students decided to protest some policy changes. Disagreement with the tenure procedure, the dismissal of some faculty members and the lack of student voice in these changes brought approximately one hundred students to the office of Dr. Face, Vice Chancellor of Academic Affairs. The discussion-sit-in lasted from the morning of the tenth until late afternoon of the following day. Throughout the long night, members of the Administration, Student Senate, and Protest group discussed various alternatives.

U.W.-Stout's Fifth Chancellor Inaugrated

Monday, April thirtieth, Robert S. Swanson was inaugurated as the fifth Chancellor of U.W.-Stout. The inauguration marked the beginning of a progressive and yet traditional direction by Chancellor Swanson. In his address, Chancellor Swanson promised to give Stout the opportunity to grow, bounded by the framework Stout had long established. The regalia was filled with ceremony, banquets, receptions, dancing, and hundreds of congratulatory messages.

A Collage of Activity

The university cannot help but affect its participants and the surrounding community, nor the community affect the university. During the spring, Stout's campus was in constant motion, a collage of action. The Symphonic Singers presented a concert on May seventh. A Pow Wow at the fairgrounds drew many onlookers. Bicycles were everywhere. For students the last few weeks were for cramming. Not just the academic material but a cramming of all the sun, fun, and people you could because once gone the semester could never be revived.

Graduation Ends An Era

Despite the clichés about graduation being only the beginning of a career it was without a doubt a very real ending of a style of life most students had known for 17 years.

The exciting day was underscored with feelings of fear, concern, and loneliness. Leaving friends, familiar environment, and freedom struck chords of sentimentality. It was a difficult, challenging, and reflective day for all those who donned the mortarboard.

ABOVE: A sea of faces, each playing an essential part in the ceremony. RIGHT: Today a robe, tomorrow up for half-price.

Empty buildings,
Empty hallways,
Empty rooms;
Suddenly it was evident the university was not a facility, it was people.

ALL

With residence halls divided into separate campuses, the North and South ends have different advantages and disadvantages. South end housed more students and was closer to activities, but North end had the beauty of the lake shore and the opportunities of knowing more people well. Stout's housing facilities offered students a choice of living style.

There are two types of college students, "on-campus" and "off". Male and female, married or single, greek or freak were all subheadings of the residence label. Both types of living had their advantages and disadvantages. In 1973 the dormitories underwent liberalizing with extended visitation, movable furniture, and beer in the rooms.

Dormitory living relaxed as furnishings could be arranged to suit the room's tenant. Living with many other people created many problems but also memorable experiences that one would remember for years.

Pop corn parties, care packages, birthday parties, poker games, water fights and laughter typified on-campus living.

"Off campus" was a different experience. Suddenly you had to worry about inflation in food prices, who's day to do the dishes, or would you or would you not let your roommate listen to your records. "Off campus" was having your own place to fix up or mess up.

Some say Greeks are dying.
This is questionable.
Greeks are changing.
They are no longer a hierarchy stressing the group image; they're striving for something relevant to the individual.
Greeks are not to categorize people,
but to offer another asset to campus existence.

Team Salvaged

Homecoming

Stout's football team had both the ambition and knowhow to score but just couldn't connect them among the players. The wind proved to be a hinderance for many of the games and as in many other events the "fans" showed just how much they cared about their team and their school.

Team Set New Conference Record

This was a very exciting year for the hustling Bluedevils. They showed what team work was all about. The tournament in Montana and Utah showed individualized playing, but the team pulled together and went on to hold the first place title throughout the season. The highlight of the season was the Stout-Eau Claire game when Menomonie went crazy over a twenty-five point victory over the long time rivals. The win brought students out of the woodwork to celebrate the long awaited taste of revenge.

Hockey Moved Indoors

This year the young Stout hockey team gained in both reputation and interest. Playing in a new indoor arena, the team drew good crowds who came to watch the growing sport on campus. Anyone participating or observing felt the speed, excitement and ruthlessness of this winter sport.

Sponsored Invitational

Inviting tough competition from national ranking schools, the blue devil swim team showed Stout a lot of high quality swimming at the Bluedevil Invitational.

ABOVE: Bending like a pretzel on the rings is this man's game. FAR RIGHT: Many long hours of practice was the key to four years of success for Tim Kruse on the still rings.

Gymnasts Kept Team Together

Stout's gymnasts endured a long, injury-riddled season to key personnel with only excellent attitudes and constant efforts to make up for missing points. The still rings team, lead by senior Tim Kruse, was one of the most outstanding in the conference. The team obtained a third place finish in the UW conference meet held at Stout and several strong individual showings in the national NAIA Championships held at UW-LaCrosse.

ROW ONE: Mike Olson, Bill Lemsky, Fred Kuhn, Gerhart Sasman. ROW TWO: Barney Klecker, Rick Burdick, Andy Staudt, Bob Sandstrom, Doug Stallsmith, Coach.

C.C. Strove to Meet the Challenge

The 1972 Cross Country team spent long hours preparing for a tough season. Captain Barney Klecker placed in the WSU Conference meet but the team efforts resulted in a sixth place finish for the season.

Cross Country, a test in endurance.

Baseball Season Was a Washout

Although soggy, rainy conditions hampered the season, the Bluedevils put forth a strong effort in diamond action. With a limited amount of veterans to stabilize the team, the Bluedevils worked to keep themselves out of the cellar.

Tense and ready as the ball is pitched.

Track Learns From Experience

It was a slow start for Stout's cinder-men of 1973. Although there were 15 returning lettermen on the team, the tracksters had a difficult time in competition. The team's best effort of the season was a second place finish against U.W.-Stevens Point and U.W.-Oshkosh at Johnson field-house in early March. From there the season was of one pretty much trying to "hold your own." It is hoped that the 1973 season proved to be a learning experience for those who will return for next year.

Netters Showed Determination

The Bluedevil netters ended their season at .500, but the average season cloaked superior play by senior Mark Bening and sophomore Bob Buckley. Benzing was voted Most Valuable Player on the team and Buckley, who was voted Most Improved Player, put together an excellent doubles record of 15-6. The team itself showed great drive and determination with many close and hard fought matches. What the young team lacked in experience was made up for in spirit and aggression.

ABOVE: Front Row: Coach Robert Smith, Steve Reiland, Ron Janowski, John Copeland, Bob Buckley, Marv Benzing. Second Row: Gary Anders, Tom Casodontie, Dan Roedl, Charles Fenske, John Osmanski, Mark Holdredge. FAR LEFT: Marv Benzing dedication is his middle name. CENTER: A smashing serve is on its way. ## Pom Pom Squad

Without the judges, referees, coaches, time-keepers, and managers, a team would have a difficult time competing strongly and fairly. All the additional obscure things that make an athletic event go unnoticed. The warmups and practices, the pep band and its rehearsals, the grounds keepers, and the concession stand all are an essential part of athletics.

Volleyball

ROW ONE: Bonnie Schansberg, Donna Lee, Marty Verkuilen, Mary Beth Hanselman. ROW TWO: Lois Reed, Mary Cave, Ann Shroyer, Nancy Nabelung, Char Raddatz. BELOW: Teamwork is the word as the volleyball is being set up for a good shot.

The Stout women's volleyball team worked hard at teamwork, but the young team finished the season with a conference record of 3 and 14. Mary Cave, senior member of the team was voted most valuable player by her teammates. Although the records showed a loss, the women of the team show they had gained much.

ROW ONE: Mary Ingwell, Mary Hanneman.
ROW TWO: Mary Johnson, Debbie Posselt.
ROW THREE: Gail Barbuss, Margaret Keyes, Dorothy Bernardi. BELOW: The skill of doing a perfect flip takes hours to develop.

Gymnastics

The women's gymnastics team had bumps and bruises as evidence of the long hours they devoted in preparation for a meet. Margaret Keyes qualified for state conference competition in the advanced level in all events. In the regional meet Stout's women placed third.

The 1973 TOWER was printed by Paragon Yearbooks, A division of Herff Jones; in Montgomery, Alabama.

The printing process was offset-lithography. The paper stock is Normandy. Type style is Optima Medium. Headlines are 24 pt.; copy is 12 pt.; captions are 10 pt.; and index is 8 pt.

"Alone" is a word that has no definition.

There can be none because aloneness would have to be shared for it to be defined.

Aloneness cannot be shared.

We are alone by choice. It can be to give strength to our convictions;

to bring peace to a confusing day;

and

to release us from the pressures of other human beings.

To be alone removes commitment, but also emphasizes the pain of being alone.

One chooses to be alone to search out and reinforce one's inner self.

Each of us must acquire a personal understanding of "alone" before we can understand one another.
